Welcome to the Zebra room Nixon!

Today Nixon had a great first day in the Zebra room. He enjoyed engaging in the art experience, cooking with Miss Tayla, exploring our sensory items and building towers with his peers in the room. It didn't take Nixon very long to bond with his new educators in the room.

Miss Tayla, Miss Liz and I are looking forward to getting to know your interests Nixon!

Mixing colours

Today the children had the opportunity to mix different coloured paint and watching as the colours changed in the zip lock bag. "is it squishy?" I asked. "Squishy" repeated Israel as he felt the paint inside the bag.

"What are the new colours we can see now" I asked. "Green and Purple" said Agam with confidence. This experience was a great way for the children to explore their sensory skills and colour recognition

Our Art

The children of the Zebra room are learning about colours they can see around them either at home, kindy or outside in the big wide world. Yesterday we started an art project about mixing colours as a continuation from the primary colours the children learnt last week and mixed yellow and red paint together to see what colour it happens to make and the outcome was Orange. The children painted one square with red paint, the second square with red paint then mixed the two colours together which become orange and painted the third square on their piece of paper with orange paint.

Our Cooking experience with Miss Tayla

The Zebras were intrigued when they saw Miss Tayla gathering a few bowls of ingredients and sitting down at the table. Miss Tayla asked "What do you think we're making" as they sat at the table. "Cookie" Liam yelled as he pointed to the box, "Chocolate" Jasper added. We first began by adding all the ingredients together in the bowl, each of the children helped by pouring in a little. They then took turn at mixing the mix all together before Miss Tayla finished mixing with her hands.

Continuing on with exploring colours, we decided to split the mix into two separate bowls and add some food colouring. In one bowl we added pink and in the other we added blue. "Ooh Blue" said Edison when he noticed the blue colour being mixed through the cookie dough. Finally Miss Tayla rolled the mix into 14 little balls as the children counted. We talked about how they are going in the oven and will be all ready to have with Afternoon Tea.
