Sensory Play With Yellow Cloud Dough

Miss Tenneile made some cloud dough for us to play with today it was made with cornflour and conditioner mixed together, she then placed it on the table for the children to explore, because of the conditioner it had a nice smell. Dylan A picked it up and put it to his nose and took a big smell. All of the children loved the feeling of the dough between their fingers then happily pushing it off the table and spreading it around the room. Sensory play is a great for children to explore new things and learn as they play.

Outcomes:4.1,4.4

Spontaneous Indoor Play

What fun we all had exploring the room and different activities. When we had finished morning tea Harvey went over to the shelf and self selected the little wooden block and sat down with Dylan L they both happily sat and built towers put of the blocks together. Nami and Oakli were both interest in exploring the small magnet shapes together, while Oakli was exploring the magnets he came across the square ones he started to place them together he was mesmerised with how they made a box. Dylan A, Oakley, Jayson and Harvey all enjoyed spending some time exploring the cars. Jayson showed great interest of making the car sounds while driving the car along the wall. Oakley and Harvey took the cars over to the table and began pushing them across the flat surface. Dora made a beeline to the home corner to do some cooking in the microwave. Free play gives the children to he opportunity to make decisions with, what, who and how they want to play.

Yellow Finger Painting

To continue on with our fun filled day of sensory Miss Tenneile set up some yellow finger painting for the Monkey's to be able to create their master pieces.

During this experience Oakley, Oakli, Ethan, Dylan A and Dylan L all showed great enjoyment as they not only explored the two shades of yellow paint but they were also able to explore the smooth texture of the paint and feel how old the paint was. Oakli and Dylan A were first to come and explore the yellow paint. Oakli couldn't wait to put his hand in the paint and place his hand onto his paper. To begin with Dylan A placed his left pointer finger into the paint and started to paint with his finger but when he seen his friend Oakli painting with his hand Dylan soon gave it a try. Up next was Ethan, Dylan L and Oakley all three of them could not wait to be able to get their hands into the paint and start painting, Ethan was very curious of how the paint went from his hand to the paper, so he then got some more paint and put both his hands together and watched as the paint transferred to his other hand. Both Oakley and Dylan both enjoyed stamping their hands on to the paper and making lots and lots of hand prints.
